DEPARTMENT OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL,
Respondent

Administrative Law Judge at the Dept. Hearing: Rodolfo Echeverria

Appeals Board Hearing: November 14, 2002
Los Angeles, CA

ISSUED FEBRUARY 4, 2003

El Torito Restaurants, Inc., doing business as El Torito (appellant), appeals from a decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control¹ which suspended its license for 15 days for appellant's clerk selling an alcoholic beverage to a person under the age of 21, being contrary to the universal and generic public welfare and morals provisions of the California Constitution, article XX, section 22, arising from a violation of Business and Professions Code section 25658, subdivision (a).

Appearances on appeal include appellant El Torito Restaurants, Inc., appearing through its counsel, Ralph B. Saltsman and Stephen W. Solomon, and the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, appearing through its counsel, Jonathon Logan.

¹The decision of the Department, dated September 20, 2001, is set forth in the appendix.

FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant's on-sale general public eating place license was issued on February 18, 1981. Thereafter, the Department instituted an accusation against appellant charging that, on January 6, 2000, appellant's bartender sold an alcoholic beverage, a margarita, to 20-year-old Diana Perez. A second count charged the sale or furnishing of an alcoholic beverage to an obviously intoxicated person.

An administrative hearing was held on July 18, 2001, at which time the Department moved to dismiss Count 2 (sale to an obviously intoxicated person). Oral and documentary evidence pertaining to Count 1 (sale to minor) was received.

Subsequent to the hearing, the Department issued its decision which determined that the violation had occurred as charged and appellant had not established any defense to the charge.

Appellant thereafter filed a timely notice of appeal. In its appeal, appellant raises the following issues: (1) The ALJ erred in his credibility determination, and (2) appellant's due process rights were violated by the ALJ's failure to disqualify himself from hearing this case.

DISCUSSION

I

Appellant contends that the ALJ, erroneously and without reason, determined that the testimony of the minor, Diana Perez, whom appellant describes as a perjurer, was more credible than that of appellant's employee, a 54-year-old man who had been a bartender for 30 years, and sustained the accusation on the basis of the minor's testimony. Appellant bases its contention on the disparity between the testimony of the minor and that of the two Department investigators, Lowrey Spencer and Dana Saladen. At the hearing, Perez testified that she told the investigators she was 20 years old the first time they asked her. The investigators testified that the minor initially told them she was 21.

Spencer testified that he and Saladen were in appellant's premises when they saw the minor come in with friends and sit at a table near the investigators. The bartender, Enrique Nunez, took their drink orders, prepared the drinks, and returned to the table placing in front of Perez what looked like a margarita, some of which she consumed. (Finding III.A.1.)

Because Perez looked young and had not shown an identification to the bartender, Spencer went to the table, identified himself as a Department investigator, and asked Perez for her age and for identification. Spencer testified that Perez initially said she was 21 and was reluctant to show her identification, but ultimately admitted she was only 20 years old and provided identification verifying her age. She told Spencer that she was drinking a margarita. (Finding III.A.2.)

When Spencer confronted the bartender and told him he had served a minor, Nunez said he had checked her identification and it showed she was 21. However, when told that Perez had told Spencer she was 20 years old and that her identification confirmed it, Nunez told Spencer that he had not checked identification because it was busy and he was working by himself. (Finding III.A.3.)

Perez, whom the ALJ found to be credible, testified that she ordered a strawberry margarita from a male Hispanic bartender/waiter, he brought the drink and placed it in front of her, and she drank some of it. She said that when the investigators came to the table, she hesitated when asked her age and also hesitated when asked for her identification. Ultimately, however, she pulled out her identification and told the investigators that she was 20 years old. (Finding III.A.4.)

Nunez, the bartender, testified at the hearing through an interpreter. He recalled that, on January 6, 2000, he served four people seated at a table, and one of the drinks he served was a strawberry margarita. After observing Perez, who was brought into the courtroom, Nunez testified that he did not recollect her too well but that Perez was not the female to whom he served the margarita. All that he recalled about the person who ordered the margarita was that she looked around 23 or 24 and was thin. Nunez's response to many of the questions asked of him during cross-examination was that he could not recall. (Finding III.A.5.) The ALJ found that the bartender was not "a credible or reliable witness, and his statement that he served a margarita to some other female and not to Perez is found not to be credible." (Finding III.A.6.)

The credibility of a witness's testimony is determined within the reasonable discretion accorded to the trier of fact. (Brice v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1957) 153 Cal.2d 315 [314 P.2d 807, 812]; Lorimore v. State Personnel Board (1965) 232 Cal.App.2d 183 [42 Cal.Rptr. 640, 644].) However, appellant asks this Board to reject the credibility determination made by the ALJ here and substitute appellant's finding of credibility in its place. To do so, however, would be neither legally nor factually justified.

Appellant contends that Perez lied twice, first when she told Spencer that she was 21, and a second time when she testified that she told Spencer immediately that she was only 20 and that she had never lied to the investigators. Appellant finds it "outrageous" that the ALJ based his decision on her testimony. Appellant asserts that "nothing about Nunez's testimony indicated that he was attempting to do anything other than tell the truth." (App. Br. at 10.)

The ALJ presented reasons for finding Nunez not credible: his response to many questions was that he could not recall, and he could not describe the person other than Perez to whom he said he served the margarita. (Finding III.A.5.) In addition, he first told Spencer that he had checked Perez's identification, but then admitted that he had not. (Finding III.A.3.) The ALJ was fully justified in his credibility determination.

Even if Perez lied as described by appellant, it would not taint her other testimony to the point that a violation could not be found. Substantial, credible evidence showed that Perez, a minor, was served an alcoholic beverage by Nunez, who did not rely on bona fide evidence of age and identity, and that service is imputed to appellant.

II

Appellant contends its right to a fair and impartial hearing was violated by use of an ALJ selected, employed, and paid by the Department. It does not appear to seriously contend that this ALJ was actually biased or prejudiced, since it offers no evidence to that effect. Rather, it argues that all the Department's ALJ's must be disqualified because the Department's arrangement with the ALJ's creates an appearance of bias that "would cause a reasonable person to entertain serious doubts" concerning the impartiality of the ALJ's.

Appellant bases its contention principally upon the hiring and payment of the ALJ's by the Department and on the transcribed testimony of Edward P. Conner, an assistant director of the Department, in the hearing on an accusation against 7-Eleven, Inc., and Kritsnee and Mark Phatipat, File #20-355455, Reg. #01050320, on May 23, 2001. At the time of his testimony, Conner was in charge of field operations for the Department's Southern Division.

A. Appellant contends that disqualification of the ALJ is required because "the Department's arrangement with the Administrative Law Judges would cause a reasonable person to entertain serious doubts concerning the Administrative Law Judge's impartiality."

This contention is premised on the applicability to ALJ's of section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), of the Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that "A judge shall be disqualified if . . . [f]or any reason . . . a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial."

However, appellant's basic premise is flawed, because this section applies only to "judges of the municipal and superior courts, and court commissioners and referees," not to ALJ's. (Code Civ. Proc., §170.5; see Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal.App.4th 213, 233 [79 Cal.Rptr.2d 910].)

The disqualification of ALJ's is governed by sections 11425.30,² 11425.40,³ and 11512, subdivision (c),⁴ of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) (Gov. Code, §11400

²Section 11425.30 precludes a person from serving as presiding officer in an administrative hearing if that person has served as, or been subject to the authority, direction, or discretion of a person who has served as, "investigator, prosecutor, or advocate in the proceeding or its preadjudicative stage."

³Section 11425.40 provides that a presiding officer may be disqualified "for bias, prejudice, or interest in the proceeding," but not solely because the presiding officer

(1) Is or is not a member of a racial, ethnic, religious, sexual, or similar group and the proceeding involves the rights of that group. [¶] (2) Has experience, technical competence, or specialized knowledge of, or has in any capacity expressed a view on, a legal, factual, or policy issue presented in the proceeding. [¶] (3) Has as a lawyer or public official participated in the drafting of laws or regulations or in the effort to pass or defeat laws or regulations, the meaning, effect, or application of which is in issue in the proceeding. . . .

⁴Section 11512, subdivision (c), provides, in pertinent part:

An administrative law judge . . . shall voluntarily disqualify himself or herself and withdraw from any case in which there are grounds for et seq.). With certain limited exceptions, which we discuss below, an ALJ can be disqualified under these provisions only upon a showing of actual bias or prejudice; the appearance of bias is not sufficient. (Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Board (1981) 28 Cal.3d 781, 792 [171 Cal.Rptr. 590] (Andrews); McIntyre v. Santa Barbara County Employees' Retirement System (2001) 91 Cal.App.4th 730, 735 [110 Cal.Rptr.2d 565]; Gai v. City of Selma, supra, 68 Cal.App.4th at pp. 220-221; Burrell v. City of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal.App.3d 568, 582 [257 Cal.Rptr. 427].)

In the present case, no evidence has been presented that this ALJ was actually biased or prejudiced. "A party must allege concrete facts that demonstrate the challenged judicial officer is contaminated with bias or prejudice. 'Bias and prejudice are never implied and must be established by clear averments.'" (Andrews, supra, 28 Cal.3d at p. 792, quoting Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal.App.2d 102, 117 [62 Cal.Rptr. 274].)

Even assuming, arguendo, that Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), were to apply, we agree with the ALJ that one could not reasonably conclude that disqualification of this ALJ, or the Department's ALJ's in general, is required.

disqualification, including disqualification under Section 11425.40. The parties may waive the disqualification by a writing that recites the grounds for disqualification. A waiver is effective only when signed by all parties, accepted by the administrative law judge, . . . and included in the record. Any party may request the disqualification of any administrative law judge . . . by filing an affidavit, prior to the taking of evidence at a hearing, stating with particularity the grounds upon which it is claimed that the administrative law judge . . . is disqualified. . . . Where the request concerns the administrative law judge, . . . the issue shall be determined by the administrative law judge. . . .

A declaration filed on behalf of appellant⁵ (Exhibit C), states that the Department ALJ's in general, and the specific ALJ in the present case, fail to present an appearance of impartiality because they have access to the Department's Southern Division offices, including those of the Department's attorneys, the law library, photocopying and facsimile machines, the Department's computer and e-mail systems, case files, and "investigation material and all files maintained" in the Southern Division offices.

This part of the declaration is based on the transcript of Conner's testimony; however, the declaration omits certain pertinent facts. Conner's testimony showed that two hearing rooms and two offices for the use of the ALJ's had recently been completed in the same building as the Department's Southern Division offices. There were previously no hearing rooms or offices for the ALJ's in the building. The new rooms, at the time of Conner's testimony, had been used for only one or two weeks and were not yet fully furnished. The ALJ's rooms are not physically connected to the offices of the Southern Division and the ALJ's do not have keys to the Southern Division offices.

The Southern Division offices house administrative personnel, Department attorneys and investigators, and support staff. The ALJ's⁶ were allowed to use the fax machine, the copy machine, and the law library located in the Southern Division suite of offices because they did not yet have those facilities in their own new offices and hearing rooms. Any ALJ's who may have taken advantage of the Southern Division facilities⁷ were required to be escorted to these destinations by Southern Division staff, where they were allowed to use the facilities undisturbed, and then escorted out of the Southern Division office suite. The ALJ's were allowed into the suite only during regular business hours and were not allowed to roam through the offices unattended. Conner stated that the ALJ's did not have access to the Department's internal computer database, although they could, along with the general public, access limited licensee information through the Department's web site.

⁵The declaration was made by appellant's attorney, Ralph Saltsman.

⁶At most, it appears that appellant's contention could apply only to those ALJ's who worked in the Department's Southern Division.

Conner confirmed, during examination by appellant's counsel, that it could be possible for an ALJ to see a fax relating to a case while the ALJ was using the fax machine; that it could be possible for an ALJ to see documents relating to a case inadvertently left in the copier; that it could be possible for an ALJ to see notes or documents of Southern Division staff left on the table in the library; and that it could be possible for ALJ's to overhear conversations between attorneys or investigators that might relate to pending or potential cases.

It is obvious from reading the transcript of Conner's testimony that appellant has grossly overstated, and sometimes misstated, the "access" the ALJ's had to material or facilities of the Southern Division's offices. Appellant attempts to create, by innuendo, the appearance of the ALJ's being privy, through the carelessness or indifference of the Department's management and staff, to numerous sources of confidential information potentially damaging to licensees who have hearings before the ALJ's. We cannot believe that a reasonable person, in possession of all the facts, would "reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial" based on the vague and remote possibilities that some ALJ's might have access at some time to material from the Department's Southern Division pertaining to cases that might be heard by those ALJ's. Therefore, even under the standard of Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), neither the ALJ in this case, nor the Department's ALJ's generally, would be disqualified.

Appellant cites the case of Linney v. Turpen (1996) 42 Cal.App.4th 763 [49 Cal.Rptr.2d 813] (Linney) in support of its position. However, Linney did not involve the APA provisions that govern disqualification of Department ALJ's. For that reason, and a number of other reasons, we do not find Linney supportive of appellant's position.

Linney, an airport police officer, contended that he was deprived of due process in a disciplinary action against him because of the method of selecting the hearing officer and because the hearing officer was paid by Linney's employer. Although the court held that Linney's failure to use the procedure set up to challenge a hearing officer's competence precluded him from raising the issue on appeal, it went on to discuss, and reject, Linney's contention. Notably, the court said "Due process does not require a perfectly impartial hearing officer for, indeed, there is no such thing. . . . [T]he principle our Supreme Court has established is that due process in these circumstances requires only a 'reasonably impartial, noninvolved reviewer.'" (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at pp. 770-771, quoting (with added italics) Williams v. County of Los Angeles (1978) 22 Cal.3d 731, 737 [150 Cal.Rptr. 5].) The court noted the language of the California Supreme Court in Andrews, supra, 28 Cal.3d at p. 792, that disqualification of a judge required a showing that the judge was biased or prejudiced "against a particular party" and that prejudice must be "sufficient to impair the judge's impartiality so that it appears probable that a fair trial cannot be held." The court in

Linney also cited with approval the opinion in Burrell v. City of Los Angeles, supra, 209 Cal.App.3d 568, which "highlight[ed] the less exacting due process requirements applicable to administrative hearings as compared to judicial proceedings." (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at pp. 772.)

Appellant may be relying on the court's statement in Linney that where prejudice or actual bias was not shown to exist, Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), was "an alternative standard for possible disqualification." (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at p. 776.) However, the court in Gai v. City of Selma, supra, 68 Cal.App.4th at pages 232-233, concluded that Linney had little precedential value with regard to use of section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), in an administrative setting because the discussion of the statute in that case was dicta, the views expressed were only those of the lead opinion's author, and the lead opinion is not clear in stating whether the statute should or should not apply to administrative hearing officers. The Gai court specifically declined to find the statute applicable to administrative hearing officers. We find the reasoning of the Gai court persuasive on this issue.

Appellant also cites the case of Teachers v. Hudson (1986) 475 U.S. 292 [89 L.Ed.2d 232] (Chicago Teachers Union), in the declaration, but do not explain in what way it believes that case supports its position. In Chicago Teachers Union, non-union teachers challenged the procedure in which an employee objecting to the "proportionate share payment" deducted from the non-union employee's paycheck went before an arbitrator selected by the union president and paid by the union; the arbitrator's decision on the employee's objection was final. The District Court upheld the procedure, the Court of Appeals reversed, and the United States Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court held that the procedure giving the union an unrestricted choice of arbitrator from a list maintained by the state board of education was inadequate, but also rejected the notion that a full evidentiary administrative hearing was required.

The lead opinion in Linney, supra, found Chicago Teachers Union inapposite for a number of reasons, in particular the view that the California Supreme Court rulings in Williams v. County of Los Angeles, supra, 22 Cal.3d 731, and Andrews, supra, 28 Cal.3d 781, were "controlling as to how expansive the courts of this state can and should be in applying the admittedly flexible concept of due process." (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at p. 775.) We do not see that Chicago Teachers Union provides appellant with support for its position.

In summary, appellant has not established that the "appearance of bias or prejudice" is the standard to be applied to the ALJ's, and it has not shown actual bias or prejudice, which is the proper standard for disqualification in this instance.

B. Appellant contends that "The Department's practice and arrangement with its Administrative Law Judges violates due process because it creates a financial interest in the outcome of the proceeding arising from the Administrative Law Judges' prospect of future employment with the Department and its good will."

Appellant bases this contention on the recent decision by the California Supreme Court in Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal.4th 1017 [119 Cal.Rptr.2d 341] (Haas), in which the court held that a temporary administrative hearing officer had a pecuniary interest requiring disqualification when the government unilaterally selected and paid the officer on an ad hoc basis and the officer's income from future adjudicative work depended entirely on the government's good will. In that case, the County of San Bernardino hired a local attorney to hear Haas's appeal from the Board of Supervisors' revocation of his massage clinic license, because the county had no hearing officer. The possibility existed that the attorney would be hired by the county in the future to conduct other hearings.

The court explained that,

[w]hile the rules governing the disqualification of administrative hearing officers are in some respects more flexible than those governing judges, the rules are not more flexible on the subject of financial interest. Applying those rules, courts have consistently recognized that a judge has a disqualifying financial interest when plaintiffs and prosecutors are free to choose their judge and the judge's income from judging depends on the number of cases handled. [Fns. omitted.]

(Haas, supra, 27 Cal.4th at pp. 1024-1025.)

Appellant contends that the present case should be controlled by Haas, asserting that, as was the case with the hearing officer in Haas, the Department's ALJ's have disqualifying financial interests because their future income is dependent on the good will of the Department, Business and Professions Code section 24210, subdivision (a), gives the Department's director (the Director) "unfettered discretion without limitation to appoint anyone he wants[,] and [the Director] is presumed to prefer those who issue favorable rulings." (App. Br. at p. 15).

Business and Professions Code section 24210, subdivision (a), provides:

The department may delegate the power to hear and decide to an administrative law judge appointed by the director. Any hearing before an administrative law judge shall be pursuant to the procedures, rules, and limitations prescribed in Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 11500) of Part 1 of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code.

Contrary to appellant's assertions, we do not read the statute as giving the Director "unfettered discretion" in appointing ALJ's to hear cases under the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. The Director's discretion is circumscribed by the requirements of the APA, in the same way that the appointment of ALJ's in the Office of Administrative

Hearings (OAH) is circumscribed. The court in CMPB Friends, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 100 Cal.App.4th 1250 [122 Cal.Rptr.2d 914] (CMPB), confirmed this view when it rejected the licensee's argument that the Department's use of an ALJ appointed by the Director violated the licensee's rights to due process and equal protection. The court stated:

The Legislature has determined that the Department may properly delegate the power to hear and decide licensing issues to an administrative law judge appointed by the Department's director. ([Bus. & Prof. Code] § 24210, subd. (a).) Those administrative law judges must possess the same qualifications as are required for administrative law judges generally, and are precluded from presiding in matters in which they have an interest. (§ 24210, subd. (a); see, e.g., Gov. Code, §§ 11425.40, 11512, subd. (c).)

Based on the language of the statute and the recent appellate court decision in CMPB, supra, we conclude that the Director does not possess the type of "unfettered discretion" the court found objectionable in Haas, supra.

We turn now to appellant's assertion that the future income of the Department's ALJ's is dependent on the good will of the Department, thus creating for the ALJ's a disqualifying pecuniary interest in the outcome of the cases they hear. The court in Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 99 Cal.App.4th 880 [121 Cal.Rptr.2d 753] (Vicary), provided a cogent response to this assertion. Vicary argued that the ALJ's "implicit bias" deprived her of due process. The court acknowledged that actual bias need not be shown if the "challenged adjudicator has a strong, direct financial interest in the outcome," citing Haas, supra, but also stated:

However, it has been consistently recognized that the fact that the agency or entity holding the hearing also pays the adjudicator does not automatically require disqualification (see McIntyre v. Santa Barbara County Employees' Retirement System (2001) 91 Cal.App.4th 730, 735 [110 Cal.Rptr.2d 565]; Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at pp. 770-771), and Haas confirms this. (Haas, supra, 27 Cal.4th at p. 1031.) As the Supreme Court also noted in Haas, such a rule would make it difficult or impossible for the government to provide hearings which it is constitutionally required to hold.

(Vicary, supra, at pp. 885-886.)

The court went on to distinguish the situation in Vicary, involving the Department's ALJ's, from that in Haas:

Haas involved a county which had no regular "hearing officer," but simply hired attorneys to serve on an ad hoc basis. The vice of the system was that an attorney who desired future appointments had a financial stake in pleasing the county, and that the county had almost unrestricted choice for future appointments. In this case, ALJ's are protected by civil service laws against arbitrary or retaliatory dismissal. (See [Gov. Code] § 18500 et seq.) Thus, there is no basis upon which to conclude that the ALJ was influenced to rule in favor of the Department by a desire for continued employment.

(Id. at p. 886.)

Vicary is persuasive authority rejecting appellant's contention that the Department's ALJ's have a disqualifying financial interest in the outcomes of the cases they hear.

The Vicary court also mentions possible disqualification under Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), but dispels the notion immediately:

Given that the ALJ's financial interest in the result is too attenuated to require disqualification without a showing of actual bias, we find Vicary's other speculative and factually bare concerns about the ALJ's presumed "coziness" with the Department insufficient to raise a suspicion of bias.⁶ The record contains no information on the manner in which an ALJ is selected by the Department for any given hearing which would suggest any possibility of bias.

⁶We note that under Vicary's theory, members of the Board could be similarly challenged, as they are subject to – or "fearful of" – removal by the Governor at his pleasure, or by majority vote of the Legislature for dereliction of duty, corruption, or incompetence. (Cal.

Const., art. XX, § 22.) Furthermore, they are just as likely to be "cozy" with the Department enforcement personnel as are the ALJ's. Such an approach to disqualification however, would essentially prevent the government from ever holding hearings on matters of public importance.

(Vicary, supra, 99 Cal.App.4th at p. 886.)

The court in Vicary concluded this part of its analysis with the following rejection of Vicary's contention that the Department should use ALJ's from OAH rather than its own:

[I]t is speculative to state that such ALJ's would be "more impartial" than those employed directly by a particular agency. We will not presume that state-employed professional ALJ's cannot, will not, or do not bring a constitutional level of impartiality to the cases they hear, even if one side is the agency that directly employs them.

The court in CMPB, supra, concluded its discussion of possible disqualification on a similar note:

We cannot presume bias simply because the Department appointed the administrative law judge. [Citations.] The petitioner has not suggested any particular bias on the part of the administrative law judge in this case to warrant disqualification. Thus, petitioner was not deprived of a fair hearing because of the nature of the administrative law judge's appointment.

(CMPB, supra, 100 Cal.App.4th at p. 1258.)

We likewise will not presume bias on the part of the ALJ in the present matter, and we reject appellant's "speculative and factually bare concerns about the ALJ's presumed 'coziness' with the Department." The ALJ properly rejected appellant's motion to disqualify.

ORDER

The decision of the Department is affirmed.⁸
