v.

DEPARTMENT OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL,
Respondent

Administrative Law Judge at the Dept. Hearing: Rodolfo Echeverria

Appeals Board Hearing: November 14, 2002
Los Angeles, CA

ISSUED JANUARY 28, 2003

7-Eleven, Inc., and R4Kids, Inc., doing business as 7-Eleven Store #27109 (appellants), appeal from a decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control<sup>1</sup> which suspended their license for 15 days for having violated Business and Professions Code section 25658, subdivision (a).

Appearances on appeal include appellants 7-Eleven, Inc., and R4Kids, Inc., appearing through their counsel, Ralph Barat Saltsman and Stephen Warren Solomon, and the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, appearing through its counsel, John W. Lewis.

FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellants' off-sale general license was issued on December 21, 2000. Thereafter, on May 30, 2001, the Department instituted an accusation against appellants charging that, on March 16, 2001, appellants' clerk, Walter Koester, sold an alcoholic beverage to Stephen Daniels, a person then approximately 19 years of age.

An administrative hearing was held on November 30, 2001, at which time oral and documentary evidence was received. At that hearing, Stephen Daniels testified that, while acting as a decoy for the Carlsbad Police Department, he purchased a six-pack of Miller Lite beer from appellants' store. Daniels testified that the clerk asked him for identification, examined his driver's license, and completed the sale. Daniels' license contained a red stripe with the phrase "21 in 2003." Daniels later identified Koester as the seller, first while he was outside and Koester was inside the store, and a second time after the police brought Koester outside. Carlsbad police officer Christopher M. Boyd testified that he accompanied Daniels to appellants' store, and, while seated in his undercover vehicle, both observed the transaction and listened as it transpired, through the use of an audio transmitting device. Boyd confirmed the identification which took place outside the store.

Subsequent to the hearing, the Department issued its decision which determined that the charge of the accusation had been established, that appellants had not established any affirmative defense, and that appellant's request that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) disqualify himself and all other ALJ's employed by the Department should be denied.

Appellants thereafter filed a timely appeal in which they raise the following issues: (1) appellants were denied due process when the ALJ refused to disqualify himself and all other ALJ's; (2) Rule 141(b)(2) was violated; and (3) Rule 141(b)(5) was violated.

DISCUSSION

I

Appellants contend their right to a fair and impartial hearing was violated by use of an ALJ selected, employed, and paid by the Department. They do not appear to seriously contend that this ALJ was actually biased or prejudiced, since they offer no evidence to that effect. Rather, they argue that all the Department's ALJ's must be disqualified because the Department's arrangement with the ALJ's creates an appearance of bias that "would cause a reasonable person to entertain serious doubts" concerning the impartiality of the ALJ's.

Appellants base their contention principally upon the hiring and payment of the ALJ's by the Department and on the transcribed testimony of Edward P. Conner, an assistant director of the Department, in the hearing on an accusation against 7-Eleven, Inc., and Kritsnee and Mark Phatipat, File #20-355455, Reg. #01050320, on May 23, 2001. At the time of his testimony, Conner was in charge of field operations for the Department's Southern Division.

A. Appellants contend that disqualification of the ALJ is required because "the Department's arrangement with the Administrative Law Judges would cause a reasonable person to entertain serious doubts concerning the Administrative Law Judge's impartiality."

This contention is premised on the applicability to ALJ's of section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), of the Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that "A judge shall be disqualified if . . . [f]or any reason . . . a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial."

However, appellants' basic premise is flawed, because this section applies only to "judges of the municipal and superior courts, and court commissioners and referees," not to ALJ's. (Code Civ. Proc., §170.5; see Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal.App.4th 213, 233 [79 Cal.Rptr.2d 910].)

The disqualification of ALJ's is governed by sections 11425.30,<sup>2</sup> 11425.40,<sup>3</sup> and 11512, subdivision (c),<sup>4</sup> of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) (Gov. Code, §11400 et seq.). With certain limited exceptions, which we discuss below, an ALJ can be disqualified under these provisions only upon a showing of actual bias or prejudice; the appearance of bias is not sufficient. (Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Board

<sup>2</sup>Section 11425.30 precludes a person from serving as presiding officer in an administrative hearing if that person has served as, or been subject to the authority, direction, or discretion of a person who has served as, "investigator, prosecutor, or advocate in the proceeding or its preadjudicative stage."

<sup>3</sup>Section 11425.40 provides that a presiding officer may be disqualified "for bias, prejudice, or interest in the proceeding," but not solely because the presiding officer

(1) Is or is not a member of a racial, ethnic, religious, sexual, or similar group and the proceeding involves the rights of that group. [¶] (2) Has experience, technical competence, or specialized knowledge of, or has in any capacity expressed a view on, a legal, factual, or policy issue presented in the proceeding. [¶] (3) Has as a lawyer or public official participated in the drafting of laws or regulations or in the effort to pass or defeat laws or regulations, the meaning, effect, or application of which is in issue in the proceeding. . . .

An administrative law judge . . . shall voluntarily disqualify himself or herself and withdraw from any case in which there are grounds for disqualification, including disqualification under Section 11425.40. The parties may waive the disqualification by a writing that recites the grounds for disqualification. A waiver is effective only when signed by all parties, accepted by the administrative law judge, . . . and included in the record. Any party may request the disqualification of any administrative law judge . . . by filing an affidavit, prior to the taking of evidence at a hearing, stating with particularity the grounds upon which it is claimed that the administrative law judge . . . is disqualified. . . . Where the request concerns the administrative law judge, . . . the issue shall be determined by the administrative law judge. . . .

(1981) 28 Cal.3d 781, 792 [171 Cal.Rptr. 590] (Andrews); McIntyre v. Santa Barbara County Employees' Retirement System (2001) 91 Cal.App.4th 730, 735 [110 Cal.Rptr.2d 565]; Gai v. City of Selma, supra, 68 Cal.App.4th at pp. 220-221; Burrell v. City of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal.App.3d 568, 582 [257 Cal.Rptr. 427].)

In the present case, no evidence has been presented that this ALJ was actually biased or prejudiced. "A party must allege concrete facts that demonstrate the challenged judicial officer is contaminated with bias or prejudice. 'Bias and prejudice are never implied and must be established by clear averments.'" (Andrews, supra, 28 Cal.3d at p. 792, quoting Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal.App.2d 102, 117 [62 Cal.Rptr. 274].)

Even assuming, arguendo, that Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), were to apply, we agree with the ALJ that one could not reasonably conclude that disqualification of this ALJ, or the Department's ALJ's in general, is required.

The declaration (Exhibit C) of Richard C. Rees, president of appellant R4Kids, Inc., states that the Department ALJ's in general, and the specific ALJ in the present case, fail to present an appearance of impartiality because they have access to the Department's Southern Division offices, including those of the Department's attorneys, the law library, photocopying and facsimile machines, the Department's computer and e-mail systems, case files, and "investigation material and all files maintained" in the Southern Division offices.

This part of the declaration is based on the transcript of Conner's testimony; however, the declaration omits certain pertinent facts. Conner's testimony showed that two hearing rooms and two offices for the use of the ALJ's had recently been completed in the same building as the Department's Southern Division offices. There were previously no hearing rooms or offices for the ALJ's in the building. The new rooms, at the time of Conner's testimony, had been used for only one or two weeks and were not yet fully furnished. The ALJ's rooms are not physically connected to the offices of the Southern Division and the ALJ's do not have keys to the Southern Division offices.

The Southern Division offices house administrative personnel, Department attorneys and investigators, and support staff. The ALJ's<sup>5</sup> were allowed to use the fax machine, the copy machine, and the law library located in the Southern Division suite of offices because they did not yet have those facilities in their own new offices and hearing rooms. Any ALJ's who may have taken advantage of the Southern Division facilities<sup>6</sup> were required to be escorted to these destinations by Southern Division staff, where they were allowed to use the facilities undisturbed, and then escorted out of the Southern Division office suite. The ALJ's were allowed into the suite only during regular business hours and were not allowed to roam through the offices unattended. Conner stated that the ALJ's did not have access to the Department's internal computer database, although they could, along with the general public, access limited licensee information through the Department's web site.

Conner confirmed, during examination by appellant's counsel, that it could be possible for an ALJ to see a fax relating to a case while the ALJ was using the fax machine; that it could be possible for an ALJ to see documents relating to a case inadvertently left in the copier; that it could be possible for an ALJ to see notes or documents of Southern Division staff left on the table in the library; and that it could be possible for ALJ's to overhear conversations between attorneys or investigators that might relate to pending or potential cases.

<sup>5</sup>At most, it appears that appellant's contention could apply only to those ALJ's who worked in the Department's Southern Division.

<sup>6</sup>It is not clear whether or not any ALJ's had, in fact, used these facilities. If any did, they were not identified by name.

It is obvious from reading the transcript of Conner's testimony that appellants have grossly overstated, and sometimes misstated, the "access" the ALJ's had to material or facilities of the Southern Division's offices. Appellants attempt to create, by innuendo, the appearance of the ALJ's being privy, through the carelessness or indifference of the Department's management and staff, to numerous sources of confidential information potentially damaging to licensees who have hearings before the ALJ's. We cannot believe that a reasonable person, in possession of all the facts, would "reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial" based on the vague and remote possibilities that some ALJ's might have access at some time to material from the Department's Southern Division pertaining to cases that might be heard by those ALJ's. Therefore, even under the standard of Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), neither the ALJ in this case, nor the Department's ALJ's generally, would be disqualified.

Appellants cite the case of Linney v. Turpen (1996) 42 Cal.App.4th 763 [49 Cal.Rptr.2d 813] (Linney) in support of its position. However, Linney did not involve the APA provisions that govern disqualification of Department ALJ's. For that reason, and a number of other reasons, we do not find Linney supportive of appellants' position.

Linney, an airport police officer, contended that he was deprived of due process in a disciplinary action against him because of the method of selecting the hearing officer and because the hearing officer was paid by Linney's employer. Although the court held that Linney's failure to use the procedure set up to challenge a hearing officer's competence precluded him from raising the issue on appeal, it went on to discuss, and reject, Linney's contention. Notably, the court said "Due process does not require a perfectly impartial hearing officer for, indeed, there is no such thing. . . . [T]he principle our Supreme Court has established is that due process in these circumstances requires only a 'reasonably impartial, noninvolved reviewer.'" (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at pp. 770-771, quoting (with added italics) Williams v. County of Los Angeles (1978) 22 Cal.3d 731, 737 [150 Cal.Rptr. 5].) The court noted the language of the California Supreme Court in Andrews, supra, 28 Cal.3d at p. 792, that disqualification of a judge required a showing that the judge was biased or prejudiced "against a particular party" and that prejudice must be "sufficient to impair the judge's impartiality so that it appears probable that a fair trial cannot be held." The court in Linney also cited with approval the opinion in Burrell v. City of Los Angeles, supra, 209 Cal.App.3d 568, which "highlight[ed] the less exacting due process requirements applicable to administrative hearings as compared to judicial proceedings." (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at pp. 772.)

Appellants may be relying on the court's statement in Linney that where prejudice or actual bias was not shown to exist, Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), was "an alternative standard for possible disqualification." (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at p. 776.) However, the court in Gai v. City of Selma, supra, 68 Cal.App.4th at pages 232-233, concluded that Linney had little precedential value with regard to use of section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), in an administrative setting because the discussion of the statute in that case was dicta, the views expressed were only those of the lead opinion's author, and the lead opinion is not clear in stating whether the statute should or should not apply to administrative hearing officers. The Gai court specifically declined to find the statute applicable to administrative hearing officers. We find the reasoning of the Gai court persuasive on this issue.

Appellants also cite the case of Teachers v. Hudson (1986) 475 U.S. 292 [89 L.Ed.2d 232] (Chicago Teachers Union), in the declaration, but do not explain in what way they believe that case supports their position. In Chicago Teachers Union, non-union teachers challenged the procedure in which an employee objecting to the "proportionate share payment" deducted from the non-union employee's paycheck went before an arbitrator selected by the union president and paid by the union; the arbitrator's decision on the employee's objection was final. The District Court upheld the procedure, the Court of Appeals reversed, and the United States Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court held that the procedure giving the union an unrestricted choice of arbitrator from a list maintained by the state board of education was inadequate, but also rejected the notion that a full evidentiary administrative hearing was required.

The lead opinion in Linney, supra, found Chicago Teachers Union inapposite for a number of reasons, in particular the view that the California Supreme Court rulings in Williams v. County of Los Angeles, supra, 22 Cal.3d 731, and Andrews, supra, 28 Cal.3d 781, were "controlling as to how expansive the courts of this state can and should be in applying the admittedly flexible concept of due process." (Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at p. 775.) We do not see that Chicago Teachers Union provides appellants with support for their position.

In summary, appellants have not established that the "appearance of bias or prejudice" is the standard to be applied to the ALJ's, and they have not shown actual bias or prejudice, which is the proper standard for disqualification in this instance.

B. Appellants contend that "The Department's practice and arrangement with its Administrative Law Judges violates due process because it creates a financial interest in the outcome of the proceeding arising from the Administrative Law Judges' prospect of future employment with the Department and its good will."

Appellants base this contention on the recent decision by the California Supreme Court in Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal.4th 1017 [119 Cal.Rptr.2d 341] (Haas), in which the court held that a temporary administrative hearing officer had a pecuniary interest requiring disqualification when the government unilaterally selected and paid the officer on an ad hoc basis and the officer's income from future adjudicative work depended entirely on the government's good will. In that case, the County of San Bernardino hired a local attorney to hear Haas's appeal from the Board of Supervisors' revocation of his massage clinic license, because the county had no hearing officer. The possibility existed that the attorney would be hired by the county in the future to conduct other hearings.

The court explained that,

[w]hile the rules governing the disqualification of administrative hearing officers are in some respects more flexible than those governing judges, the rules are not more flexible on the subject of financial interest. Applying those rules, courts have consistently recognized that a judge has a disqualifying financial interest when plaintiffs and prosecutors are free to choose their judge and the judge's income from judging depends on the number of cases handled. [Fns. omitted.]

(Haas, supra, 27 Cal.4th at pp. 1024-1025.)

Appellants contend that the present case should be controlled by Haas, asserting that, as was the case with the hearing officer in Haas, the Department's ALJ's have disqualifying financial interests because their future income is dependent on the good will of the Department, Business and Professions Code section 24210, subdivision (a), gives the Department's director (the Director) "unfettered discretion without limitation to appoint anyone he wants[,] and [the Director] is presumed to prefer those who issue favorable rulings." (App. Br. at p. 15).

Business and Professions Code section 24210, subdivision (a), provides: The department may delegate the power to hear and decide to an administrative law judge appointed by the director. Any hearing before an administrative law judge shall be pursuant to the procedures, rules, and limitations prescribed in Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 11500) of Part 1 of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code.

Contrary to appellants' assertions, we do not read the statute as giving the Director "unfettered discretion" in appointing ALJ's to hear cases under the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. The Director's discretion is circumscribed by the requirements of the APA, in the same way that the appointment of ALJ's in the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) is circumscribed. The court in CMPB Friends, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 100 Cal.App.4th 1250 [122 Cal.Rptr.2d 914] (CMPB), confirmed this view when it rejected the licensee's argument that the Department's use of an ALJ appointed by the Director violated the licensee's rights to due process and equal protection. The court stated:

The Legislature has determined that the Department may properly delegate the power to hear and decide licensing issues to an administrative law judge appointed by the Department's director. ([Bus. & Prof. Code] §24210, subd. (a).) Those administrative law judges must possess the same qualifications as are required for administrative law judges generally, and are precluded from presiding in matters in which they have an interest. (§24210, subd. (a); see, e.g., Gov. Code, §§11425.40, 11512, subd. (c).)

(Id. at p. 1258.)

Based on the language of the statute and the recent appellate court decision in CMPB, supra, we conclude that the Director does not possess the type of "unfettered discretion" the court found objectionable in Haas, supra.

We turn now to appellants' assertion that the future income of the Department's ALJ's is dependent on the good will of the Department, thus creating for the ALJ's a disqualifying pecuniary interest in the outcome of the cases they hear. The court in Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (Vicary) (2002) 99 Cal.App.4th 880 [121 Cal.Rptr.2d 753] (Vicary), provided a cogent response to this assertion. Vicary argued that the ALJ's "implicit bias" deprived her of due process. The court acknowledged that actual bias need not be shown if the "challenged adjudicator has a strong, direct financial interest in the outcome," citing Haas, supra, but also stated:

However, it has been consistently recognized that the fact that the agency or entity holding the hearing also pays the adjudicator does not automatically require disqualification (see McIntyre v. Santa Barbara County Employees' Retirement System (2001) 91 Cal.App.4th 730, 735 [110 Cal.Rptr.2d 565]; Linney, supra, 42 Cal.App.4th at pp. 770-771), and Haas confirms this. (Haas, supra, 27 Cal.4th at p. 1031.) As the Supreme Court also noted in Haas, such a rule would make it difficult or impossible for the government to provide hearings which it is constitutionally required to hold.

(Vicary, supra, at pp. 885-886.)

The court went on to distinguish the situation in Vicary, involving the Department's ALJ's, from that in Haas:

Haas involved a county which had no regular "hearing officer," but simply hired attorneys to serve on an ad hoc basis. The vice of the system was that an attorney who desired future appointments had a financial stake in pleasing the county, and that the county had almost unrestricted choice for future appointments. In this case, ALJ's are protected by civil service laws against arbitrary or retaliatory dismissal. (See [Gov. Code] § 18500 et seq.) Thus, there is no basis upon which to conclude that the ALJ was influenced to rule in favor of the Department by a desire for continued employment.

(Id. at p. 886.)

Vicary is persuasive authority rejecting appellants' contention that the Department's ALJ's have a disqualifying financial interest in the outcomes of the cases they hear.

The Vicary court also mentions possible disqualification under Code of Civil Procedure section 170.1, subdivision (a)(6)(C), but dispels the notion immediately:

Given that the ALJ's financial interest in the result is too attenuated to require disqualification without a showing of actual bias, we find Vicary's other speculative and factually bare concerns about the ALJ's presumed "coziness" with the Department insufficient to raise a suspicion of bias.<sup>6</sup> The record contains no information on the manner in which an ALJ is selected by the Department for any given hearing which would suggest any possibility of bias.

<sup>6</sup>We note that under Vicary's theory, members of the Board could be similarly challenged, as they are subject to – or "fearful of" – removal by the Governor at his pleasure, or by majority vote of the Legislature for dereliction of duty, corruption, or incompetence. (Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22.) Furthermore, they are just as likely to be "cozy" with the Department enforcement personnel as are the ALJ's. Such an approach to disqualification however, would essentially prevent the government from ever holding hearings on matters of public importance.

The court in Vicary concluded this part of its analysis with the following rejection of Vicary's contention that the Department should use ALJ's from OAH rather than its own:

[I]t is speculative to state that such ALJ's would be "more impartial" than those employed directly by a particular agency. We will not presume that state-employed professional ALJ's cannot, will not, or do not bring a constitutional level of impartiality to the cases they hear, even if one side is the agency that directly employs them.

(Vicary, supra, 99 Cal.App.4th at p. 886.)

The court in CMPB, supra, concluded its discussion of possible disqualification on a similar note:

We cannot presume bias simply because the Department appointed the administrative law judge. [Citations.] The petitioner has not suggested any particular bias on the part of the administrative law judge in this case to warrant disqualification. Thus, petitioner was not deprived of a fair hearing because of the nature of the administrative law judge's appointment.

(CMPB, supra, 100 Cal.App.4th at p. 1258.)

We likewise will not presume bias on the part of the ALJ in the present matter, and we reject appellants' "speculative and factually bare concerns about the ALJ's presumed 'coziness' with the Department." The ALJ properly rejected appellants' motion to disqualify.

II

Appellants contend that, because the decoy was six feet, two inches tall and weighed 145 pounds, and had worked as a technical assistant for the Carlsbad Police Department Detectives Bureau, he possessed the "maturity, size, and demeanor of an individual 21 years of age or older."

The ALJ considered all of the indicia of age exhibited by the decoy which, appellants argue, show that he lacked the appearance required by Rule 141(b)(2), and reached the opposite conclusion.

Judge Echeverria stated, in his proposed decision (Finding of Fact II-D):

D. The overall appearance of the decoy including his demeanor, his poise, his size, his mannerisms and his physical appearance were consistent with that of a nineteen year old and his appearance at the time of the hearing was substantially the same as his appearance on the day of the decoy operation.

1. The decoy is a youthful looking male who is tall and thin. He is between six feet one inch and six feet two inches in height and he weighs one hundred forty-five pounds. When he was at the premises on the date of the sale, he was clean-shaven and he was wearing black jeans, a gray crewneck shirt and a black fleece jacket with a zipper in front.

2. The decoy testified that he is a technical assistant with the Carlsbad Police Department where he runs errands and performs technical work for the investigators, that he is a high school graduate and that he has not attended college or a trade school.
3. The photo depicted in Exhibit 4 was taken outside the premises on the night of the sale. The photo depicts what the decoy was wearing on the night of the sale. The photograph depicted in Exhibit D was taken at the police station prior to going out on the decoy operation of March 16, 2001. The jacket does not make the decoy look older and does not make him appear to be over the age of twenty-one as alleged by the Respondent's attorney.
4. The decoy did not appear nervous at the hearing and he answered questions in a straightforward manner. There was nothing remarkable or unusual regarding his non-physical appearance.
5. After considering the photograph taken outside the premises (Exhibit 3) [sic], the decoy's overall appearance when he testified and the way he conducted himself at the hearing, a finding is made that the decoy displayed an overall appearance which could generally be expected of a person under twenty-one years of age under the actual circumstances presented to the seller at the time of the alleged offense.

There is nothing in the argument presented by appellant that persuades us the ALJ was wrong in finding as he did. He was shown a photograph of the decoy taken on the day of the decoy operation, observed the decoy as he testified, and considered a number of indicia of age in reaching his conclusion regarding the decoy's appearance.

As we have often said, we are not inclined to substitute our judgement for that of the ALJ, absent compelling circumstances, none of which are remotely present here.

III

Appellant contends that this case is governed by the Appeals Board decision in Keller (2002) AB-7848, in which the Appeals Board reversed the Department because the face to face identification took place after the police brought the clerk out from the store and the decoy, who had already made his exit from the store, only then made the identification.

In Keller, the Board compared the identification process with a "one-person line-up," one in which the decoy's identification of that clerk as the seller was inevitable.

This case is different. In this case, the decoy had left the store, but was at the front entrance, in a position where he could see the clerk while the clerk was still behind the counter. He identified the clerk to the officers, the officers brought the clerk outside, and the decoy, face to face with the clerk, again identified him as the seller. These facts are not in dispute.

Appellant places too much emphasis on whether the decoy reentered the premises to make the identification, and ignores the real issue, which we see as the integrity of the identification by the decoy.

In Acapulco Restaurants, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (1998) 67 Cal.App.4th 575 [79 Cal.Rptr.2d 126], the identification was made not by the decoy, but, instead, by the police officer who had witnessed the transaction.

Rule 141(b)(5) does not, by its terms require the identification to be made inside the store. It requires a police officer to make "a reasonable attempt to enter the premises" and "have the minor decoy ... make a face to face identification." The rule imposes two separate duties on the officer - to attempt to reenter,<sup>7</sup> and to conduct a face to face identification. In this case, both duties were performed.

ORDER

<sup>7</sup> Although the rule uses the term "reenter," in many cases the officer has observed the transaction from outside the premises, so can only attempt to "enter." The Board has always considered this to comply with the rule.

The decision of the Department is affirmed.<sup>8</sup>
